

Young peoples book of weather,

This is an introductory weather book written for budding atmospheric scientists and all others fascinated with the amazing world of air, wind, water, and weather. Written by Commander David C. Holmes, U.S.N., and Marvin Pitkin. Instructions are provided for making your own simple barometer (either using mercury [p. 138] or a simpler model with no requirement for mercury [p. 136], which is hazardous of course) to measure air pressure fluctuations. This book is a must read for any enthusiastic meteorology instructor or hobbyist.
