

Johnsons New Handy Manual: On Plumbing, Heating, Ventilating and Mechanical Refrigeration (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Johnsons New Handy Manual: On Plumbing, Heating, Ventilating and Mechanical Refrigeration Fig. A shows a battery of boilers with cross-connected pumps. Feed water heater and tank on the roof. The installation is as follows: For Suction: Connect pumps No. 1 and No. 2, as in illustration, by 4x3 tees to the city main. Between the tees and pump connections insert gate valves A and B and flange unions. Valve must in all cases be next to the tee so that in case either pump should have to be disconnected, valves A or B can be closed and the pump disconnected without interfering with the water supply. From the tee, connecting pump No. 1, run a 4 pipe to a point directly under the roof tank and with a long sweep elbow continue the pipe up through the roof and connect to the bottom of the tank on this pipe, marked 4 tank suction on the illustration, at a convenient place, insert a 4x2 tee and connect with 2 pipe, marked feed to boiler through heater, using valve C and flange union. When feed from tank direct to boilers close valve D and open valve C. When feed which has passed through the heater is wanted close valve C and open valve D. Check valve E. E. must be set to open with the flow of water from tank or heater. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
